A Commitment to Sustainable Facilities

When you come to Devil's Thumb Ranch, you'll find one of the highest levels of environmental sustainability in the country. In addition to using reclaimed wood for many of the structures on the Ranch, the swimming pool, hot tubs and buildings are heated with geothermal heat from the earth. We also encourage guests to reuse towels and bedding during their stay and have low-flow plumbing fixtures. We've been recognized by the EPA and many publications for our efforts – but we don't do it for the attention. We do it because it's the right thing to do.
